Editorial

It is with immense joy and gratitude that I extend my heartfelt message as T.K.M. College of Arts and Science celebrates its Diamond Jubilee year. Sixty years of academic excellence, social commitment, and inclusive education mark a proud legacy envisioned by our founder, Janab Thangal Kunju Musaliar, and carried forward by generations of dedicated faculty, staff, students, and alumni.

This Diamond Jubilee is not merely a commemoration of the past, but a reaffirmation of our mission to empower communities through quality education. The year-long celebrations, including seminars, exhibitions, alumni reunions, and community outreach programmes, reflect our holistic vision of blending tradition with innovation. Initiatives such as Grameenam 360, rural development projects, and the launch of the Creovation Hub highlight our resolve to extend learning beyond classrooms and foster social transformation.

Our NAAC A++ accreditation and recognition as a Green Institution stand as milestones of our collective effort, underscoring our commitment to sustainability and academic distinction. As we celebrate this historic occasion, let us look ahead with renewed determination to nurture talent, inspire innovation, and uphold the values that define T.K.M. College.

May this Diamond Jubilee inspire us to shine brighter in the decades to come.
